

VETERAN HOPKINS' BURIAL PRIVATE

Remains Quietly Laid to Rest in Glenwood Cemetery.

HE WAS EARLY A PATRIOT

Served Under Lee in U. S. Army, Ayre in Civil War, and Custer.

Funeral services for Daniel Webster Hopkins, who died at his home, 36 A Fodd place northeast, on Saturday, as a result of a stroke of paralysis, were held at his home this afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Hartsock, of Laurel, Md., officiated at the services, which were attended by Mr. Hopkins' six children and grandchildren, as well as a large number of friends. Private interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery.

Was a Soldier at Early Age.

Mr. Hopkins was born near Upper Marlboro, Md., August 9, 1838. When he was nine years old his mother and father both died. He went to Georgetown to learn the tailoring trade. At the age of sixteen he enlisted in the United States Navy, and was honorably discharged several years later.

In 1857 he enlisted in Company F, of the Second United States Cavalry, then in command of Col. Robert E. Lee, at that time connected with the regular army. When Colonel Lee resigned to take command of the Confederate forces Hopkins' command was placed in the division under General Ayre, in Boston, where he served with distinction in the civil conflict, and participated in the engagements at Gaines Mill, Falling Waters, Antietam, and several other battles. Mr. Hopkins was also with Custer on the Western frontier.

Guarded Lincoln's Body.

He was one of the three policemen detailed at the White House while President Lincoln's body was lying in state there. He always alluded to this detail with especial pride.

He resigned from the police force to accept a position as watchman in the Interior Department. He remained there for fourteen years. At the expiration of this service he went to the Government Printing Office, where he was employed as a doorman, having been given the position by President McKinley. Two years and a half ago he was stricken with paralysis, but continued his work for six months, when he was compelled to retire. Three months ago his health began to fail and he died a peaceful death, with all of his relatives gathered at his bedside.

Mr. Hopkins was a member of John A. Rawlins Post, G. A. R. He took an active part in its affairs for many years.

He is survived by these children: Charles W. Hopkins, Mrs. Robert McElroy, Mrs. George Woodbridge, Mrs. Charles W. Hopkins, Mrs. Fletcher, and Miss Elizabeth Hopkins.

Confectioners' New Ice Plant Plan Is Now Winning

A new ice plant in Washington, to manufacture 250 tons of ice per day, and to cost at least $100,000, as predicted exclusively in "The Times" a week ago, is now well defined plan of the Confectioners' Association of Washington. J. Elmer Lacey, an ice cream manufacturer at 607 New York avenue northwest, secretary of the association, said today that he had seen practically all the members of the association and that they had been unanimously in favor of the project, planning their co-operation in the move to put the confectioners beyond dependence on the ice companies.

Determined to Have Plant.

"We are now casting about for a manager to take charge of the work involved in erecting the plant," said Mr. Lacey today. "There is no doubt that we will put up the establishment. Our most active efforts in that direction will come after our busy season, but we are determined to have the plant. We will build it so that it will supply a surplus above the actual needs of the local confectioners. This surplus will be sold to other wholesale dealers and possibly to some family trade."

Mr. Lacey said that at present the local ice situation is entirely satisfactory to the consumers.

"Some of the companies," he declared, "for some mysterious reason, seem willing to give us overboard."

Can Now Supply All.

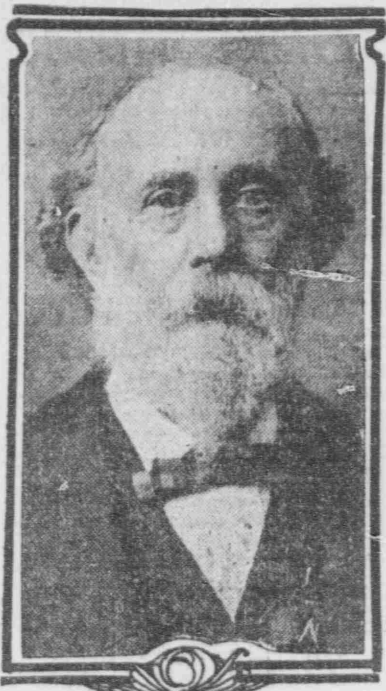

At the offices of the American Ice Company, it was given out today that the company has the situation well under hand, and that it can supply all comers with the cold product.

Asked about the report that some one, who would not reveal his identity, had said he would manufacture ice here (with a new plant at a cost of 40 cents a ton, S. A. Kimberly, the local manager of the American Ice Company, said: "If he can do it at that price, he's a genius with a new method up his sleeve. We have heard rumors from several sources of people who were willing to build ice plants if somebody would subscribe the necessary capital for them. But it doesn't seem to me that there is room for any more large ice plants in the city of Washington. It seems evident that the plans of this person have not progressed to any marked extent."

Have Serious Shortage.

That the American Ice Company all over the Eastern part of the country is confronted with a serious shortage in its ice supply is now known. A letter received at the offices of the local branch of the company from the president of the concern in New York states that the company is short of its regular supply by as much as 150,000 tons, and contains the caution to the local branch that it cannot furnish it with any more ice and, therefore, the Washington

SALOON MAN CUTS COLORED PATRON

James Fegan Fined $25 for Assaulting Disturber of Store.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, ALEXANDRIA, VA., JULY 8. James Fegan was before Justice Caton in the police court this morning, having been arrested by Policeman Beach on the charge of assaulting a colored man named Andrew Lomax and cutting him over the eye. Fegan was represented by Attorney L. H. Machen. Witnesses testified that Lomax had been abusive around Fegan's saloon when Fegan knocked him down and kicked him. Fegan in his own behalf stated that Lomax had advanced toward him as if to hit him, when he knocked him down on some bottles. The man then, he said, came back at him, when he knocked him down again and kicked him. Justice Caton imposed a fine of $25 upon Fegan.

TROLLEYS COLLIDE; PASSENGERS SCARED

A southbound electric car on Fourteenth street crashed into a westbound car at the intersection of U street and Fourteenth street northwest, at 11:30 o'clock last night, causing much excitement among the passengers of both cars, one man being thrown from his seat to the pavement and quite badly hurt.

Several women were aboard the cars at the time of the accident and were badly frightened. One woman, in her excitement, attempted to leap through a car window.

Traffic resumed as soon as the cars could be placed on the track again. Joseph Henson, colored, twenty-five years of age, of 1706 T street northwest, a passenger on the Fourteenth street car, was badly bruised about the head and otherwise shaken up.

house must "curtail its consumption," which has been on the increase this summer.

"I went to New York soon after receiving that," explained Mr. Kimberly today, "and I made arrangements to secure enough ice to supply our large demand in Washington. Today I received the bill of lading of the barge Idaho which is on her way here with a large cargo of Maine ice. 'We have not yet finished unloading the Holbrook's cargo, and the Van Brunt's 1,500 tons still remain intact. You see from that we are easily fixed to give the people all the ice they can possibly use."

Blames Maine Dealers.

"There is a shortage of ice in Maine. That is one cause of our company's trouble in getting hold of the ice. Another cause is that those fellows up in Maine are speculators and they are holding their ice for high prices. They read in the papers that it is selling for as much as $10 a ton, and they say to themselves they, as well as anybody else, ought to be reaping the profits. Consequently, with their houses full of ice, they sit back and demand exorbitant prices for their product. Complaints from families in regard to their ice supplies have about entirely ceased, and the ice famine here has passed completely."

BODYGUARD SLOAN PAYS FINE OF $10 FOR HIS KNOCKOUT

Slugged Photographer for Taking Shot at President on Sunday.

OYSTER BAY, July 9.—President Roosevelt's personal Secret Service body guard, James C. Sloan, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 by "Squire" Franklin this morning for assaulting Clarence Le Gendre, a photographer, employed by a New York paper, on Sunday, July 1, the day the President arrived from Washington. Sloan's plea of "guilty" was a surprise to the prosecution, who hoped to be able to air the case. With this end in view Le Gendre had retained as counsel John Graham, former assistant district attorney of Nassau county and had summoned as witnesses a number of persons who were at the station when the assault was committed. A large crowd of villagers had gathered in the court room eager to absorb whatever sensational evidence developed.

When the "case of the people against James C. Sloan" was called, Sloan stepped up to the judge's desk and the latter asked him to make his plea.

"I plead guilty, your honor," said Sloan.

"Your fine will be $10. In default of payment you will be sentenced to ten days in the county jail," said the judge. "Does that $10 include the costs of court?" asked Sloan, reaching for his "roll."

"Ten dollars includes all of it," replied the justice.

Sloan handed the cash to the court and left the room followed by the disappointed crowd. The assault committed by Sloan followed the snap-shooting of President and Mrs. Roosevelt by Le Gendre, after he had been forbidden to take the picture by the Secret Service men. President and Mrs. Roosevelt objected to having their pictures made on Sunday, and the Secret Service men, knowing this, made an effort to protect them in spite of the guards, and when Sloan expostulated with him for taking it, it is said, laughed tauntingly at him and called him a "bluffer." Sloan then struck him in the face.

NO YELLOW FEVER AT NEW ORLEANS

Marine Hospital Service Denies Rumor of Its Appearance and No Epidemic Is Anticipated.

Officials of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service say they have no information that a case of yellow fever has developed in New Orleans, and if there were a case of yellow fever in that city it would be reported here. This is the season of the year when yellow fever makes its appearance, but the sanitary conditions of the Crescent City have been so greatly improved since last year that it is not likely there will be a single case reported this season. Stories of yellow fever, officials say, may be sent out by sensational writers, but they should be given no attention unless the reports come from authoritative source.

BALLANTYNE'S BODY WILL BE BURIED HERE

Funeral Services to Be Held in Church of the Covenant Wednesday Morning.

Funeral arrangements have been completed for the burial of the late William Ballantyne, who died at his summer home near Nantucket, Mass., on Saturday. R. Carter Ballantyne, his son, who left Saturday evening for Nantucket, will return to Washington tomorrow evening with his father's remains. The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Church of the Covenant, of which Mr. Ballantyne was for many years a member and presiding elder.

In the absence of the Rev. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, the Rev. B. F. P. Tinger, formerly of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, and temporarily in charge of the North Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the services. If possible it is intended to have the Rev. A. W. Pitzer, of Salem, Va., assist Dr. Bittinger at the services. Both men who have been selected by the family to officiate at the funeral services have been lifelong friends of the deceased.

The pallbearers have been chosen from the elders of the church. They are A. G. Quass, A. F. Moore, and E. Southard Parker. Two more pallbearers are to be chosen from the session of the church.

SAYS BOTH HARTJE'S ARE THE VICTIMS

been made the victims of a conspiracy. The Hartjes were married in this city sixteen years ago. The wedding was a big social event for those days, for the bride was the daughter of one of the leading citizens of Pittsburgh, as well as one of the wealthiest, while the groom was one of the rising young business men. For a time they lived happily. They had two children—Mary Louise, now aged eleven, and John Scott, now nine. Since the separation of the Hartjes the children have been living with their mother at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Scott.

Mr. Hartje is about fifty years old. He is the senior member of the firm of Hartje Brothers, paper manufacturers. The firm is probably the largest independent concern in the United States manufacturing wrapping paper, white print and note paper. Mr. Hartje also owns, according to many on the stand the other day, twenty-six pieces of real estate in the downtown business section of Pittsburgh, which are worth a million dollars.

Mrs. Hartje is about thirty-four, although she looks much younger.

Discredited Detectives.

For the last few years the Hartjes have not lived happily together. Mr. Hartje was jealous of his pretty wife; every one knows that. And during one of his fits of jealousy he engaged a detective agency to follow her every movement. The detective agency gave him a vast amount of information, and he brought suit. Since that time this detective agency, which was conducted by Ira L. Berry, has had its license revoked by the court for using underhanded methods in gathering evidence. It is alleged that the agency manufactured a great amount of its evidence.

At the last session of the license of the Anti-Saloon League, employed by this agency to secure the license of saloon-keepers, and on the strength of this information the licenses of many saloon-keepers were opposed. But when the time came for the hearings the detective agency was unable to "make good," and in a number of cases did not put in an appearance at the hearings. On that account the license of the agency was revoked after the manager had been given a stinging reprimand by the court.

And now people are wondering whether or not the Hartje family might not have been a victim of these same methods. When Gus Hartje dragged Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman, into the case as a co-respondent, his friends were so horrified that they could scarcely believe the reports. They declared that Hartje must be insane to make such a charge. But they are beginning to think that possibly it was only the suspicious of Hartje and the crooked methods of persons whom he employed that brought both Hooe and his friends into the case of the most sensational divorce suits ever tried.

Public Sentiment in the Case.

Public sentiment has been and is decidedly against Hartje, while the conduct of Mrs. Hartje on the stand and in the court room has won friends by the thousands. They believe she is telling the truth when she declares that the charges against her are false. There are those, too, who believe that Augustus Hartje himself believes her, now that it is too late.

Reared in luxury and surrounded by cultured people, her friends cannot believe that she could ever stoop to a lout like Madine or to the negro, Madine is ignorant, cringing, and yet well satisfied with himself. After having been in the court room and on the witness stand almost daily for a week, Madine on July 4 attended the races at Birmouth, strutting up and down the front of the grandstand well pleased with the attention he attracted. He can scarcely read or write. On the witness stand the first of the week Attorney H. H. Harrison brought out the greater part of the time. Scarcely a word was spelled correctly, and a child in the primary department of a school would have done better. He was asked to spell a number of ordinary words. He couldn't spell one of them correctly, and then, in his "smart" was told the attorney to spell them himself. Such is Tom Madine to whom the burning love letters are alleged to have been written by a refined, intelligent, and well educated woman.

In some of the letters there are also words of love sent by the sisters of Mrs. Hartje to Madine. The inference is that these sisters, or at least one of them, knew of relations existing between Mrs. Hartje and the coachman.

The Stolen Letters.

Patrick Golden, a special officer at the Oakland police station, verified the story as to the methods by which the letters in the case were secured. They were secured, it is asserted, by a detective named Craig, who engaged a room at the boarding house of Mrs. Richardson, at 813 Filmore street, about three weeks ago. Craig is alleged to have taken them while Tom Madine was at work at the Schenley stable.

Madine discovered the loss of the letters the day following his return from New York, where he had gone for the purpose of securing witnesses to testify in the divorce case. The coachman first reported his loss at the East End police station, saying that his trunk had been robbed. Special Officer Golden was assigned to investigate the robbery.

"Madine was very mad when he found that his letters were gone, but when I found that the letters were more valuable than some papers were taken I saw that there was hardly sufficient evidence of a crime for us to go further into the case. I reported it at the police station. Madine was so mad that I think he would have shot Craig if he had found him."

"Did Madine tell you that any letters were taken?"

"He said 'papers,' but he said there was a letter of recommendation from Augustus Hartje, and that it was of value to him. He said he had been knocking about for three weeks without work, and that nobody would employ him, and he wanted the letter to show when asking for work. He also said: 'That divorce trial is coming up, and I want to show that that man gave me as good a recommendation as any man on earth could give an employee. She's too good for him. She's a fine woman. She treated her help too good to suit Mr. Hartje. There is nothing against the woman's character. Nobody could do a good deed her. If I'd take $5,000 they would have me use her as a tool. That's all they wanted me to do.'"

Arrests Expected Soon.

Owing to the unexpected move of Hartje and John L. Welshone, who went to the office of Alderman Justin M. King and entered bail in the sum of $3,000 each to answer a charge of conspiracy to defame the name of Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, the new arrests which Assistant District Attorney John S. Robb, Jr., promised are likely to be made sooner than expected. Mr. Robb said yesterday that the other information would likely be made today.

It is generally understood that the defense will bring experts Lewis and Carvalho, of New York, who figured in the Molnau case, to combat the evidence of the experts for the prosecution.

Blonde's Husband Angry at Hartje Threatens Suit

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 9.—More millionaires are to get into the Hartje divorce scandal. The mysterious blonde woman, who met Hartje in Schenley Park and was driven to his house in the absence of Mrs. Hartje, according to the story told by Coachman Tom Madine on the stand, is the direct cause.

The indirect cause is the allegation made by Augustus Hartje that his wife visited the Hotel Lincoln with a wealthy Alleghenian, whose name has not yet been presented in court.

This Alleghenian's friends are egging on the latest sensation. They decided Hartje had done an ungenerously thing in introducing him into the scandal. It was also felt that they must stand together.

When the blonde woman incident was sprung they became busy in trying to learn the woman's identity. There are many blondes in Pittsburgh, both in and out of society, but the millionaire detectives finally decided much to their chagrin and astonishment, that it was the wife of one of their own class.

It was promptly agreed to keep the alleged discovery quiet, but some men will talk, and the story finally reached the husband of the suspected blonde. He is infuriated and will not believe his wife's denial, and says he will not accept Hartje's promise to deal on the witness stand. He threatened suit for divorce, with Coachman Madine for his chief witness.

In the meantime, the Allegheny millionaire is still dissatisfied, notwithstanding Hartje's announcement that the Hotel Lincoln incident is not to be brought into the case.

In the meantime, Clarence Reitzenstein, the proprietor of The Hub, has purchased his stock for the coming fall and winter seasons. It is, therefore, doubly essential that every vestige of summer merchandise be disposed of immediately. Prices have been reduced from 33 to 50 per cent. Mr. Reitzenstein says that he has always enjoyed the confidence and patronage of the best dressed men in this city, and that he would not endanger his reputation by announcing these reductions were they not bona fide in every sense.
